

VS.

Kinkajous and Winnie the Pooh both like honey. They're both called "honey bears." However, they are very different. Read these facts to learn more!

Winnie the Pooh:

- lives inside a tree in the Hundred Acre Wood.
- has yellow fur and soft paws and wears a red shirt
- eats honey and sleeps at night
- is friendly and has a lot of friends

Kinkajous:

- live on the tops of trees in the rainforest
- have thick, brown fur
- have sharp claws and sharp teeth
- have a long strong tail and a long tongue
- eat honey, nectar, insects and frogs
- sleep during the day
- are born in tree holes
- are related to the raccoon and aggressive
- have carnassial teeth and are in the carnivore group
- Kinkajou babies are called, "kits".
- Babies hiss when they're scared.
- A mother kinkajou chirps to comfort her baby

Information in the above boxes was gathered from the following sources:

<https://carolinatigerrescue.org/species/kinkajou/> and the Winnie the Pooh Series, written by A.A.Milne